Dear Siblings in Christ,

I've heard some people who live "up North" joke that, "It's not the end of the world, but we can see it from here."

I'm also reminded of a conversation I had decades ago with an employee at the store where I worked as a manager. We had determined that both of us were followers of Jesus, and she surprised me by asking, "Do you think we are in the end times?" I didn't know much about Christianity in its various flavors back then, but I knew enough to understand that the question represented a particular viewpoint, one about which I had reservations. This is not the place for a discussion about the end times, but I did answer her. "Yes," I said, though a bit disingenuously, because I didn't want to get into a protracted argument that time either. The upshot is that I do believe we are in the end times, but not in the same way that she did.

Endings have been on my mind lately as the Call Committee has finished its work. I understand that they have worked hard, thoughtfully, and faithfully to discern the Holy Spirit in its commission. And, of course, with that ending comes the ending of my time here.

I'm relating these two seemingly unrelated stories to remind you that endings are not always the end because endings always bring beginnings. (Some of the TV shows and movies I watch with my wife have taught me that characters never stay dead for long. It's more often a question of when a character will return, not if.) The ending of the Call Committee's work and my time here brings the beginning of a new chapter in your congregational life.

On a serious note, many of the current events in our world can make us wonder if the day of reckoning is upon us. Mass shootings, unjustifiable wars (as if any war is justifiable), systemic racism, attacks on vulnerable people, and threats to our democracy are just some of our valid concerns. There are days when wanting Jesus to return looks like a great idea.

But this verse from the Bible keeps coming to mind, "So if anyone is in Christ, there is a new creation: everything old has passed away; see, everything has become new!" (2 Corinthians 5:17) No matter what our situation, God is continuing to make all things new. We may not be able to see it, or see it clearly, but we know that we are to keep looking.

The ending of the Call Committee's work means that your new settled pastor is coming, and no one knows how that will unfold, though we trust in God's provision. As noted earlier, it also means that my time as your interim is at an end, something I've reminded you of each week in worship. This ending will mean a new beginning for me as I enter retirement. And, of course, this ending means I will no longer be available for pastoral acts. Even so, what won't end is that I will carry you all in my heart. Thank you for allowing me to walk with you on this part of your faith journey.

As for the tumultuous events of our present day, we cling to God's promised presence in, with, and through us and our world, that suffering is not the end. Not even that great separator, death, has the last word. You have claimed that presence throughout your short history, especially as you have dealt with difficult circumstances. You are truly a resilient people.

We are continually moving from one ending to the next beginning and that can be disorienting. If that's where you find yourself today, know that God is always with you. You are never alone, and God is never done with you. That's good news.

In Christ,
 Pr. Scott Olson

Shame has no claim!

Now when all the people were baptized and when Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, the heaven was opened, and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven, "You are my Son, the Beloved; with you I am well pleased." Luke 3:21-22 NRSVUE

The month of February this year falls entirely within the season of Epiphany, which began with Baptism of Our Lord Sunday. I would like to use this space to highlight portions of the sermon I preached that day, which attempted to address the presence of shame in our lives and moving us toward what God says about us in our own baptisms.

Do you know the difference between guilt and shame? Perhaps the simplest way to explain it is that guilt deals with the things you do – your actions or deeds, particularly your misdeeds – the things you've done or left undone – the theological term would be sins. But shame is about who you are. Guilt is "I did something bad." Shame is "I am bad." Be honest, have you ever felt like you weren't good enough? Have you ever felt like you don't belong, or that you're not valued, or worthy of love? Have you ever felt like you aren't smart enough, thin enough, attractive enough, capable enough, strong enough, emotionally healthy enough, likeable enough. Or that you just don't have it together. Have you ever told yourself, I'm just not enough? That's what shame is.

Carl Jung, the famous psychologist, called shame "the swampland of the soul." It's that place in us that festers and rots away at us from the inside. It's where we store all the negativity and judgment that the world puts on us, and it feeds the swamp. The thing about swamps is that they're stagnant. There's no place for the swamp water to go, it just sits there and festers and grows. So when the shame swamp fills up with the things people say about you, you start to believe those things yourself, and you get stuck in the swamp. Research shows that shame is highly correlated with addiction, depression, aggression, violence, bullying, eating disorders, and suicide.

Brene Brown, who's done a lot of research on shame, says that there are three things that allow shame to grow. The first is judgment. Judgment can come from others, but it's most damaging when it comes from ourselves. The other two things are secrecy and silence. Think about the swamp image; judgement is what pumps the sludge into the swamp, but it's secrecy and silence that keep the swamp dammed-up and stagnant. We don't want to talk about our shame or show it to others. Why? Maybe because if we say it out loud we're afraid it might become true, or that the other person will reject us for it. So we keep it secret and hidden, mistakenly thinking we'll be better off in the swamp, because at least it feels safe there.

But that feeling safety is a dangerous illusion. The place of true healing and wholeness, the way out of the swamp... is the river. Because its at the river that we hear the truth about who we really are:

You are my son, my beloved. With you I am well pleased.

You are my daughter, my beloved. With you I am well pleased.

You are my children. I have called you by name, and you are mine. You are enough, and I love you.

May that mighty river of God's mercy and love flood the swampland of your soul and break open the dams of secrecy and silence. Shame has no claim over you! Because you belong to Christ, in whom you have been baptized. Alleluia!

Yours in Christ's Baptism,

Pr. Drew

COUNCIL CORNER

January's council meeting is a full slate. We take time to look back at the year that was and look forward to the year ahead. The respect around the table shows through as we gather, and that makes it difficult knowing that January's meeting will be the last for those whose time on council is coming to an end. The terms for Andrea Kubinski, Rita Wunderlich and Amy Cox have come to an end, and I'd be remiss if I didn't take a moment to recognize them for how they've given so much to Our Saviors with their time, energy and leadership.

The reports from staff, tables, and committees, all show the dedication, commitment and love that embodies our congregation. There is so much that goes into our church in order so that we may extend ourselves beyond it.

It's oft repeated that the generosity of this congregation should never be underestimated. We've had to share troubling financial news at times, and I've had to deliver financial reports to the council that haven't been so great at times, but I was eager to deliver January's report. November's numbers, reported in December, had us at a net loss for the year of nearly $38,000, yet we know we can generally rely on a strong December for giving, and this past month was just that. Giving in December exceeded the Ministry Spending Plan (MSP) forecast by over $16,000 for the month and not only cut into our YTD net loss, but erased it entirely giving us a modest net gain for the year. As we've dedicated ourselves to transparency as a council, while I celebrate the net gain and thank everyone who gave to make it so, it needs to be said that when actuals are compared to the 2024 MSP, actual giving for the year fell short of the forecast by ~$62,600 and our expenses were nearly $100,000 "under budget" primarily because we did not have as high of staff costs being without a Business Administrator and Director of Children's Ministry for the year.

We discussed the Annual Meeting, finalized the agenda for it and accepted an MSP for 2025 to be presented during it. The meeting will also include voting on new council members and proposed amendments to the Church's bylaws.

The Personnel Committee has recommended and the Council has approved to hire Ashley Andersen as the Kathleen Putrah Director of Children's Ministry!

The Call Committee has made a recommendation for a candidate to be called as Our Savior's next Lead Pastor. The Council approved of the candidate, and will move forward with calling a Special Congregational Meeting to be held on Sunday, February 2nd, following worship with the sole purpose of presenting the candidate to the congregation for a vote.

We are continually grateful for the many ways you, members of OSLC, continue to support the church and its mission with your time, talent and resources. I'll say it any time I can: thank you.

Respectfully,

Jarid Finstuen
OSLC Treasurer

Community Garden Volunteer

There is a need for a volunteer to coordinate our church community garden. Our garden has served the Faribault community for over 20 years. Each gardener plants and maintains their own plot or plots. It is a nice outreach program for OSLC as many of the gardeners are not members of OSLC and do not have any place of their own to raise produce for their families.

The coordinator has several tasks to help set-up the garden each spring and close down the garden in the fall. Mark Zentner is retiring as coordinator in 2026, but is looking for a volunteer interested in taking over to work with this year to ensure a smooth transition.

Please contact the church office or Mark Zentner at 815-451-1937 if you are interested or have any questions.

MEET OUR Director of Children's Ministry

My name is Ashley Andersen and I have been a member of Our Saviors for over 21 years. I have three children ages 23, 21, and 17. I worked in the field of social services for many years before becoming a substitute teacher for the Faribault school district in 2017. Although I have loved my time with the school district, I feel called to this new position as Director of Children's Ministry and am enthusiastically looking forward to sharing God's word with the children of Our Saviors and getting to build relationships with the young families in our congregation.

The Director of Children's Ministry position is being supported and named in honor of Kathleen G. Putrah through a generous bequest from her family. A celebration of this donation is being planned.
